

Week of March 9, 2014

As the seasons change (we hope!) and the times change (this weekend!), we always look for new opportunities for our spiritual growth. I encourage you to check out the updated fliers that have plentiful experiences for you and your family. We are adding new events and will be making announcements soon. It has been proposed that the time for the rosary on Sunday mornings in the St. Bonaventure Chapel might shift from before the liturgy to after our celebration. Watch for signs and know you are always welcome there to pray when the church is open. We will be swapping the days for two of our Tuesday evening series. Following our discussion of the Blessed Mother with Mary Harrison on March 11th, our DVD presentation will now be on the 18th and Julie Carrigan will join us on the 25th of March, leading us into a discussion on how we might become a more welcoming parish. We will keep you posted on additional times for Reconciliation and the Stations of the Cross. God bless you all. We hope you can join us....and if you can't, perhaps you'll consider checking out opportunities online. Joyce Solimini, the Associate Director of Adult, Intergenerational & Sacramental Catechesis for the Diocese of Albany, recently shared an excellent website that I encourage you to discover. As we unite with all those who are preparing for baptism and confirmation at the Easter Vigil or throughout the seasons of Lent and Easter, we can support them as well as our own spiritual development. Joyce invites us to check out the link "54 Lenten Resources" from the website TeamRCIA.com. Another wonderful resource for young adults and any-one young in heart is the bustedhalo.com, 'an online magazine for spiritual seekers. Seek these websites and I assure you that you'll find something rewarding.
